

Landscape characteristics influence projected growth rates of stream-resident juvenile salmon in the face of climate change in the Kenai River watershed, southcentral Alaska

Authors & Affiliations

Benjamin E. Meyer¹, Alaska Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit, College of Fisheries and Ocean Sciences, University of Alaska Fairbanks, Fairbanks, Alaska 99775 USA; benjamin.meyer.ak@gmail.com

Mark S. Wipfli, U.S. Geological Survey, Alaska Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit, Institute of Arctic Biology, University of Alaska Fairbanks, Fairbanks, Alaska 99775 USA; mwipfli@alaska.edu

Erik R. Schoen, International Arctic Research Center, University of Alaska Fairbanks, Fairbanks, Alaska 99775 USA; eschoen@alaska.edu

Daniel J. Rinella, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Anchorage Conservation Office, 4700 BLM Road, Anchorage, AK 99507 USA; daniel_rinella@fws.gov

Jeffrey A. Falke, U.S. Geological Survey, Alaska Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit, Institute of Arctic Biology, University of Alaska Fairbanks, Fairbanks, Alaska 99775 USA; jfalke4@alaska.edu

¹Current affiliation: Kenai Watershed Forum, 44129 Sterling Hwy, Soldotna, Alaska 99669